EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Nice Realty, LLC is a Real Estate Company located in Apex, NC, that is associated with The Ocean Group LLC Real Estate in Raleigh, NC. The company is relatively successful and highly competent, but lacks a real grasp of the community, and struggles to promote itself in several areas. We reached out to the company, and after extensive research and collaboration, founded Project Poseidon. Our first step to fixing Nice Realty's problem was our flagship strategy: the Trident.

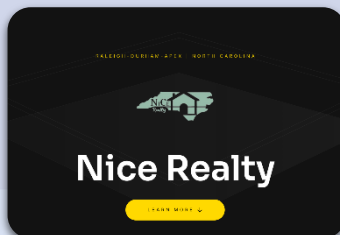

The Trident

Online
Infrastructure

Direct Media
Marketing

Endorsement

The Trident, as its name would suggest, was a three-pronged strategy aimed at launching Nice Realty directly into the local scene. To be a successful organization in the 21st century, several characteristics are required: a strong online presence, a persistent marketing strategy, and a down-to-earth appeal to the community. To address these steps to success, we employed the Trident plan: establishing a website and two social media pages, building relationships within the community, spreading the word by cold-calling in person, and finally maintaining a strong commitment to the community by sponsoring a local 5k for MLK Day.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

At Nice Realty, our goal is to connect deeply with the neighborhood and market while catering exceptional guidance in the world of real estate. To ensure that every transaction is a collaboration in the process of buying or selling a house, we are committed to improving customer relations through the development of meaningful partnerships.

Above is Nice Realty's Mission Statement, aiming quite high. Our goals collectively aimed to deliver on the mission statement we penned, but also ensure that all three prongs of the Trident pierced through the deafening silence that was Apex's real estate sector. We aimed to achieve this by addressing four key performance indicators that would serve as metrics by which we would grade the successes and areas for improvement in Project Poseidon.

Potential Clients

Community Event Attendance

Social Media Followers

Website Traffic

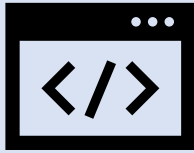

Many factors were at play in terms of monitoring and controlling Project Poseidon. The website needed search engine optimization, the social media pages needed engagement such that the algorithm would promote them, and the community events required a persistent promotional message in order to remind the people who sponsored them. We required a firm schedule to adhere to in order to keep ourselves on track.

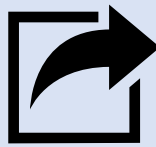

INITIATING

STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM

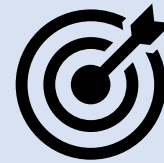

Nice Realty is a family-owned local limited liability corporation under the umbrella of the larger Ocean Group LLC. We found Nice Realty through our company contact Mrs. Dandala. After a thorough discussion with her and an examination of the company, we located a few problems restraining its growth. The immediately-obvious problem was the lack of online infrastructure:

Website

Social Media

Promotional Mix

Looking deeper into the company itself, we realized that it lacked inherent community awareness, being a real estate company that deals with just over a dozen clients annually. Thus, we concluded that it was paramount to establish a strong presence in Apex, furthering community awareness. Soon after reaching these conclusions, we issued this official statement of the problem:

Nice Realty, although relatively successful in the area, lacks a strong promotional mix, including modern-day online infrastructure such as social media and websites; this in turn has perpetuated insufficient community awareness for the company to grow forward.

A strong promotional mix will be vital to Nice Realty's success especially due to the high influx of migration to the Triangle and its neighboring area. The Raleigh-Durham area is ranked the 3rd best place to live nationally and as a result, both Raleigh and Durham are the 4th fastest growing cities in the entire United States. When urban areas like this grow rapidly, neighboring suburban areas such as Apex receive massive growth as well. Therefore, to properly benefit from the potential that this area has to offer, Nice Realty must strengthen its online presence and establish a firm brand within the community such that it can leverage the growth of Raleigh, Durham and the surrounding suburbs.

INITIATING

PROJECT SCOPE

Purpose: This project intends to increase community awareness with regards to Nice Realty by establishing a strong online infrastructure, a large social media presence, endorsing an official community 5k, and creating a tangible network of real-world marketing spread throughout the community via flyers. This business solution, known as Project Trident, has three prongs with which we intend to diversify Nice Realty's promotional portfolio. Below lies the rationale.

Website

The first prong is online infrastructure. We expected our website to receive significant web traffic to the extent that it would allow people to research and connect with either our contact Mrs. Dandala, or the parent organization of Nice, the Ocean Group.

Direct Media Marketing

Our second prong is intended to promote Nice Realty through community events, such as the 5k at Mt. Zion. This would ensure that the Nice brand is associated with community outreach and a conscious awareness of the people it works for.

Endorsement

The third prong was spreading the word of Nice Realty through pamphlets, as well as flyers posted in multiple locations. We expect these ads to appeal to the right demographic, thus enabling them to visit our website and social media and be further exposed to the brand.

While our program is three-pronged, each is well-connected. The flyers reference the website, which has a large amount of information, both with regards to Nice Realty and the Ocean group, but also the community event we sponsored. Our social media handle was placed on all forms of advertising. Thus, by being exposed to a single form of advertisement, interested consumers will be exposed to all of our efforts, thus further planting Nice Realty and Ocean Group in their minds.

We host the 5k at Mt. Zion, passing out flyers with Nice Realty Contact Information.

People that pick up our flyers look at the professional design and view the QR codes.

The flyers lead to the online infrastructure, increasing awareness of Nice Realty.

PLANNING & ORGANIZING

PROJECT GOALS

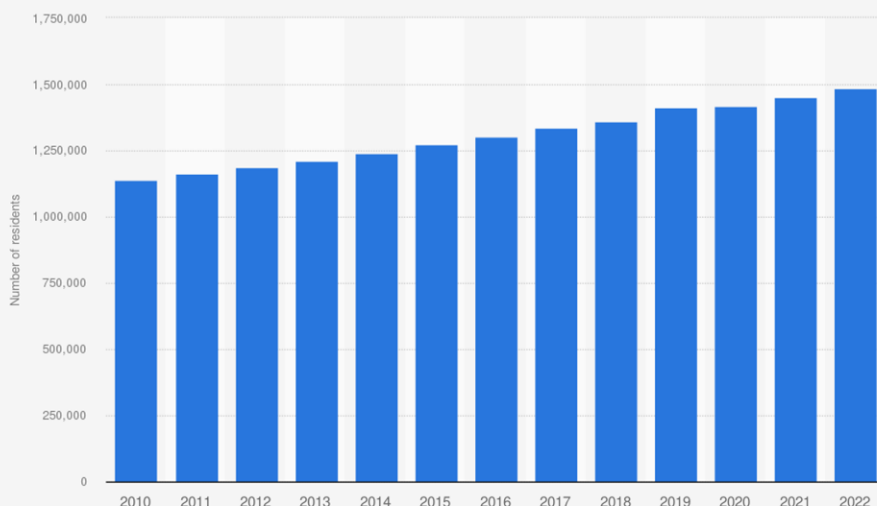

At the outset of this project, we decided to implement a better promotional mix through the Trident, potentially increasing community awareness and clients for Nice Realty. Our first goal was to establish a brand. We did so by first producing a high-quality logo that represented Nice Realty and provided an eye-catching hook for anyone perusing our advertisements. After presenting our logo design to Mrs. Dandala, we received feedback such as putting greater emphasis on the “N” and “C” in Nice, as in North Carolina. After implementing the feedback, we came to a design that all parties agreed on.

Our next major goal was to apply this brand online. We first started with online marketing and infrastructure. The website, social media pages, and direct email marketing were our major sources of direct and indirect online promotion.

We elected to increase community awareness by distributing flyers throughout Downtown Apex and establishing a social media presence to market Nice Realty and the service it provides to create recognition and also gain more clients.

Population of the Raleigh-Cary metro area in the United States from 2010 to 2022

Based on this graph, we realized that it was important to take advantage of a growing market, and thus a well-placed marketing campaign would serve Nice Realty well.

PROJECT GOALS

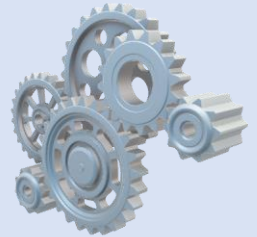

Website and Search Engine Optimization (SEO):

To optimize our SEO strategy, we first created High-Quality Content and we meticulously designed a mobile-friendly UI design for the Nice Realty. Our team focused more on UI design because Google SERP is very sensitive to UI design on search queries and device types.

Nice Realty's Mission Statement:

At Nice Realty, our goal is to connect deeply with the neighborhood and market while offering exceptional guidance in the world of real estate. To ensure that every transaction is a collaboration in the process of buying or selling a house, we are committed to improving customer relations through the development of meaningful partnerships.

Community Charitable Event:

One of our project's main goals was to successfully sponsor and volunteer at a charitable event. This provides numerous benefits to the community and Nice Realty. According to CG Life blog, "Sponsoring an event for a charitable organization can be a powerful way to raise brand awareness, create positive press, and build relationships with people in your community". We planned to use a charitable event to primarily do good for the community, while simultaneously using it as an opportunity to advertise the company and position our company as positive and philanthropic in the minds of our market. This will ultimately increase our community awareness leading to an increase in clients.

HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT

Shresth Singh: As Chief Presentation Officer and, Shresth Singh makes a substantial contribution to the team-based leadership framework. His duties include supervising the drafting process, organizing teamwork, and presenting results to pertinent parties. His strengths are his excellent communication, and application of business concepts in real-world scenarios. His work is essential to maintaining harmonious group dynamics and producing engaging presentations that support the goals of the business.

Vaibhav R. Dandala: As the chief information technology officer, Vaibhav Dandala brings a plethora of experience to his position. His duties include managing the development of websites and search engine optimization, which makes him a key player in improving the company's online visibility. His expertise encompasses front and back-end technologies, highlighting his pivotal role in propelling technological improvements inside the company. Vaibhav's strengths include composition and ideation.

Tanish A. Dongre: As the chief marketing director, Tanish Dongre plays a key role in directing its marketing initiatives. In addition to managing the social infrastructure, his duties also involve creating powerful business postings about Nice Realty and organizing the open house advertising. Tanish is a pro at leveraging smart business strategies to establish connections with a wide range of people. His strengths are mostly creative, but he also possesses exceptional marketing and promotion skills.

SCHEDULE

Our project began on November 25th, during Thanksgiving break, when we formed our team and met at Vaibhav Dandala's house to brainstorm ideas and participate in team-building activities. Below is the tentative schedule we determined at project's beginning.

SCHEDULE

Team's Creation/ Birth of Project Poseidon	November 25 th	Forming of the Team and Contact with Nice Realty
Logo Created	December 7 th	Initial Step to A New Beginning for Nice Realty
Social Media Established	December 17 th	First Method of Publication for Nice Realty
Website Publication	December 20 th	Establish Nice Realty as a Professional Company
Mt. Zion Church 5K	January 15 th	Gave Nice Realty a touch of generosity and publicity

The following 2 milestones entail the most important aspects of the planning and execution of our project. They were key decision points as well as motivation for our path forward:

1. Creating online infrastructure:

- Employed a source of publicity and lead generation for Nice Realty
- Created a professional platform for others to view Nice Realty
- Increased connections for Mrs. Dandala and potential clients

2. Establishing community awareness:

- Created a good first impression of Nice Realty within the Raleigh-Cary community
- Increased brand awareness with prospective customers
- Allowed us to build relationships and ask questions to customers' previous home-buying or home-selling experience to learn.

PLANNING & ORGANIZING

QUALITY MANAGEMENT PLAN

Below are the key metrics we utilized to gauge the effectiveness of the project:

- Contacts/Potential Clients
- 5k Walk for Hope Interest (Business Cards, Flyers, People to our Table)
- Social Media Impact (Follows, Views, Likes, Shares)
- Website Traffic

RISK MANAGEMENT PLAN

After an internal analysis of our plan and project, we identified 2 main risks:

- I. Low Turnout for 5k Walk For Hope - Whatever increase in social media impact, web traffic, and possible new clients we expected would depend on significant attendance. We managed this through advertising, word of mouth, and collaboration with the community.
- II. Lack of Professionalism and Quality when Coding the Website – We switched from HTML & CSS code to a reputable website creator while maintaining positive elements and redesigning other elements.

PROPOSED PROJECT BUDGET

Our Project Budget is made up of the following:

Sponsorship payment to Mt. Zion Church + Assorted Presentation and Project Materials:

Total: $250 + $43.20 = $293.20

EXECUTION

Approval of Website and Promotional Advances from Mrs. Dandala and Ethan Ocean/Client Retention and Value of Customers/Clients: Through constant communication with Mrs. Dandala, we were able to collect a list of past and current clients and send a holiday email to them stating Mrs. Dandala's gratitude for their commitment and confidence in her services. Once Mrs. Dandala sent us the text, we were able to create a Canva design to make her email more enticing and readable to her clients. We were then able to help Mrs. Dandala mail merge her email and our Canva design to all her clients through the help of YAMM Mail Merge and Google Sheets.

Frequent communication strengthens the bond between client and company, otherwise known as client retention. Client retention deepens relations and marketing through the gratitude of clients who view this email. Through emails, we were able to collect a few responses from clients and future leads. Furthermore, we decided to sponsor Mt. Zion Church's MLK Day 5k Walk for Hope. Working closely with the church's coordinator, Shebbie Coppage, we were able to organize an informational tent setup, where we can explain, advertise, and hand out our flyers, as well as volunteering in various activities. This sponsorship of the 5k Walk of Hope will be an integral part of Project Poseidon, increasing community awareness and building a positive image of Nice Realty.

EXECUTION

Website Creation: To create the website, we first designed a wireframe to find an agreeable UI design aspect. We first attempted to code the website through generic HTML and CSS code, but we later concluded that we were unable to make the margins with block elements in a professional manner as well as importing images. We ended up using the same images, content, and layout but created the website through Carrd. During the process of creating the website, Mrs. Dandala also requested that we have areas on the website for them to contact her via phone number and email. We created sections for the landing page, information about Mrs. Dandala, information about Ocean Group, and a contact info section. We finalized the website with the domain name: nicerealty.carrd.co. The main pages of the site are below:

Logo Creation: We initiated the logo creation process by first considering what we want to represent Nice Realty with. We eventually decided upon North Carolina, a house, a formal font on the word “Nice”, and a more relaxed font choice on the word “Realty”. Initially, we placed on it a green North Carolina, as it represents Nice Realty’s home state and houses its base of operations. We then placed a house, which represents the real estate the company buys and sells. The formal font is to establish that Nice Realty is a reputable company with real operations, and on the other hand, the relaxed font is to remind people that Nice Realty is also a grounded, small business that can be trusted. The final product is available on page 5.

EXECUTION

Flyers: One of our groups greatest visual assets was Canva. Organizing text boxes, contrasting colors, and using sharp, professional images, we placed important contact information and QR codes on our flyers. This ultimately culminated in three flyers that we determined would convey the right image of Nice Realty in our audience's minds. We also created a social media post. They are displayed below.

EXECUTION

Community event: The community event was the ultimate test of our marketing strategy, and the culmination of everything project Poseidon had been working towards at this point. All three prongs of the Trident were in full swing here. The website and social media pages were made into easily accessible QR codes. The second prong, endorsement, was actively being used to sponsor the 5k. The crucial third prong, person to person marketing, was going to play a key role during the event. Throughout the 5k, we went up to several participants, marketing the brand as well as handing out flyers and business cards. All in all, three hundred people came to the event, sixty approached our table, ten expressed interest and five actually contacted Nice Realty. In our search for potential clients, we actually ran into a former member of DECA; she had been in a very similar business solutions project to ours more than forty years ago! She's right here!

We greatly enjoyed connecting with the community.

MONITORING & CONTROLLING

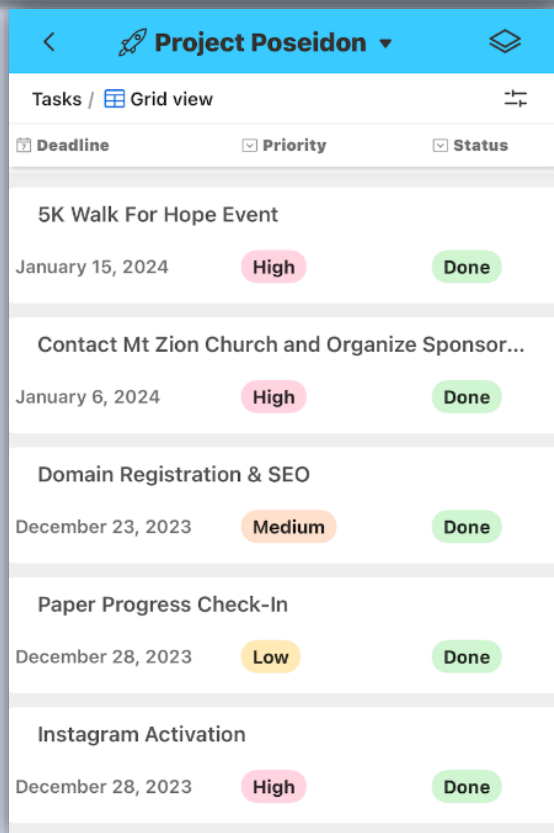

MONITORING

Option One:

Initial Timeline

Option Two:

Tasks / Grid view	Deadline	Priority	Status
5K Walk For Hope Event	January 15, 2024	High	Done
Contact Mt Zion Church and Organize Sponsor...	January 6, 2024	High	Done
Domain Registration & SEO	December 23, 2023	Medium	Done
Paper Progress Check-In	December 28, 2023	Low	Done
Instagram Activation	December 28, 2023	High	Done

Monitoring of Schedule

We monitored our schedules in two main ways.

Initially, we created a simple timeline on a planning document which included meet-up times, tasks, deadlines, and a road from the start to the end of the project. Later, we organized our tasks and road map using the application AirTable and its organizational and project management functions. Using AirTable, we were able to set tasks for ourselves, classify them in terms of priority and difficulty, mark our progress, and set a deadline. For example, when organizing a collaboration with Mt Zion Church, we first created our task and set it as “to do” in terms of progress and “high priority” for priority. Then, as we progressed through, frequently contacting Shebbie Coppage and coordinating our sponsorship, we moved the task to “In Progress”. Lastly, after a successful 5k Walk for Hope, we moved the task to “Done”. Using this method, we were able to effectively monitor our task schedule, assuring timeliness, efficiency, and quality. After switching to AirTable to manage our task schedule, we used our initial timeline to plan meetups and work times. Combining these two methods, we were able to create an effective schedule which ensured productivity and timely completion of the project.

MONITORING

Our budget originated from our coordinator with Nice Realty, Mrs. Dandala. We discussed a possible budget including a sponsorship of an event and materials. Our budget was set at $500. While progressing through the project, securing a tent at the 5k MLK Walk for Hope at Mt. Zion and printing out flyers, we realized we would only need money for sponsorships and project materials, thus we only ended up needing 70% of the budget. For example, our sponsoring budget went towards this setup.

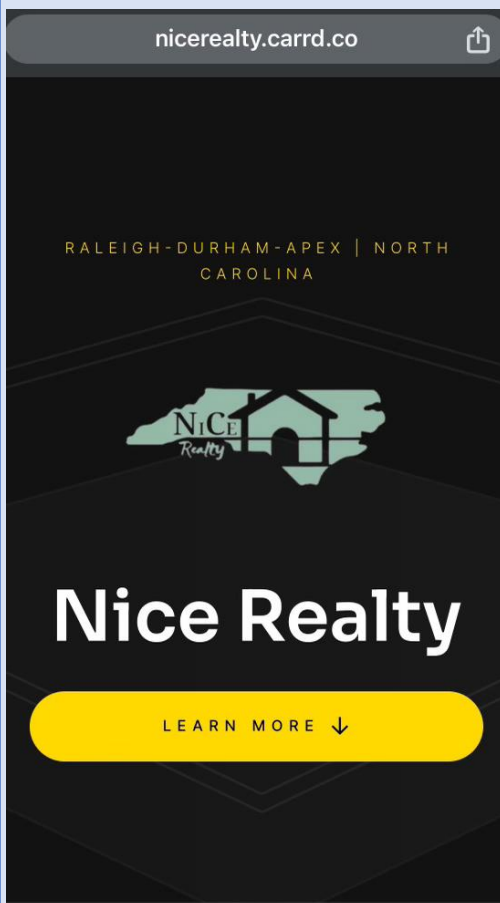

Managing our project quality, involved 3 main steps. The first was extensive peer evaluation of all written steps. Like any group project, we divided the project between us based on our strengths and weaknesses. In order to ensure quality, each piece of writing was evaluated by the other two members, as well as a self-evaluation later on. We implemented this system because we knew it is easier for a fresh pair of eyes to distinguish many mistakes and opportunities to improve missed while writing. This ensured quality in our writing. Next, using the aforementioned app AirTable, we ensured tasks got done on time. Listing out all required tasks and prioritizing them ensured we focused on the important things primarily, while not forgetting about all tasks. This ensured timely and quality completion of tasks. Lastly, we maintained project quality through evaluation outside our team: other DECA members. They were exposed to the final product, without any of the biases the Project Poseidon team developed through the lengthy process of writing this paper. These 3 factors together made sure our project was of the highest quality feasible.

CONTROLLING

We focused on creating a website that has a minimalistic and mobile-friendly UI design as websites are mainly viewed on mobile devices based on a study based on Google Analytics and SEMrush. Eric Enge, author of The Art of SEO, states “Google has long been aware of the growing importance of mobile devices, and first announced an algorithm update to focus on these devices in April 2015.” Google has recently announced its mobile-first indexing universal Search Engine Results Page. This allows for more mobile entities to access websites easily. We first tried to view the website on a mobile device and the page layout was unnavigable. Images were floating with no margins and buttons were not placed centered on the page. With the use of media queries through Carrd and the different styling of the max-width option of 300px, we were able to style the page to be a mobile-friendly UI design. We did this with all our pages to have an effortless feel as the user scrolls through the website.

Project Poseidon had roadblocks such as the time constraint. We began our project in late November, and with the due date being January 29th, we knew it was going to be an intense two months. One counter to this was prioritizing and starting everything that needed time early on, such as the social media and website traffic. This needed time so that people could actually visit them and genuine traffic could be shown. This plan was a success as we were able to gain good website and social media traffic. The second road block was actually sponsoring a community event. When we first had the idea, we weren't sure if we'd receive a response. We surpassed this roadblock by writing follow-up emails and calling. Eventually, Mt. Zion Church picked up and we were able to successfully sponsor the 5k MLK Walk for Hope, generating significant interest and community awareness.

CLOSING THE PROJECT

LESSONS LEARNED & KEY METRICS

Lessons Learned	Worked Well	Did Not Work Well
Initiating	Condensing a variety of problems observed in Nice Realty into the concise, three-pronged Trident/ establishment of a schedule and task management app	- Idea generation - Kickstarting the project
Planning and Organizing	Frequent Meetings as well as communication through calls, text, and video chat	Scheduling conflicts combined with time management issues with school
Execution	- All three prongs of the Trident were comprehensively utilized to improve Nice Realty - Setting up for the 5k MLK Walk for Hope	- The large amount of promotional legwork necessary to achieve such consistent utilization - Coding the website did not go as planned, had to switch to website creator.
Monitoring and Controlling	- Extensive Peer Evaluations - Effective management of problems	Our time constraint affected our ability to achieve key metrics

Key Metrics	Before	After	Impact
Instagram	Non-Existent	Followers – 25, Views – 100, Likes - 60	185 Followers & Algorithm Engagement
Facebook	- Followers/Friends – 70 - Views – 100 - Likes - 85	Followers/Friends – 110, Views - 213, Likes - 50	203 Followers & Algorithm Engagement
Website Traffic	Non-Existent	- Web Traffic reached 220 Large Increase in Visitors from 5k	220 Viewers and Search Engine Optimization
5K Walk for Hope/Community Awareness	Non-Existent	60 Flyers & Business Cards given out 10 Expressed Interest 5 Contacted Nice Realty	- Exposure to 300+ people and 10 potential clients 5 Contacted Nice Realty

For future projects, we recommend more involvement into the social media aspect, as that can efficiently reach a diverse demographic of potential clients. Also, Start Sooner: starting sooner allows for more time for the website and social media to generate traffic and allows for greater opportunities to expand the promotional mix.

Above were the two biggest sources of help for our website. The Art of SEO detailed exactly what we needed to get our website on the front pages, as well as how to keep it on the good side of search engines. The guidelines as provided by the National Association of Realtors ensured the legality of our website, as well as providing a few sources of inspiration when thinking of things to include on it.
